Sentencing On Tuesday

David Robinson, 24-yearold Victoria janitor, pleaded guilty in B.C. Assize Court today to the non-capital murder of 14-year-old Susan Freschi.

Susan's naked and battered body was found lying face down-ward in the woods near her home at 2637 Chilco, near Par-son's bridge on the Old Island Highway, last May 12.

Her wrists were tied behind her back by a 17-foot length of Robinson was charged in Colwood magistrate's court with capital murder (murder with intent) and committed for trial. Today in Assize Court the prosecution reduced the charge to non-capital murder (murder without intent).

JERKED FORWARD

A slim, dark-haired man in a white shirt, Robinson sat quietly in the dock while the charge was read. When asked whether he pleaded guilty or not guilty, he jerked forward in his seat and answered: "Guilty."

The plea came as a surprise Expecting a plea of 'not guilty,' the court had asembled 55 witnesses and a jury panel of 44, expecting a prolonged

Mr. Justice George Gregory dismissed the jury panel after the plea of "guilty" was entered and adjourned the hearing until 11 a.m. Tuesday at the request of Crown prosecutor William R.

Mr. Justice Gregory is expected to pass sentence some time Tuesday after Mr. McIntyre has presented the Crown's case. Alan Bigelow will appear for the defence.

Only Nature can make a tree. But Man can build a forest. The timberlands we manage will yield 40% more wood than Nature's ever did.

Take our ten-year forestry program. In logged and thinly treed areas, we'll be planting forty million new seedlings. In crowded spots, we'll thin the trees to provide space for faster growth. (The thinnings? They'll be used too: sold to world markets as pulp and paper.) And as always, we'll be waging the endless war against the enemies of the forest. Preventing fire, controlling insects and disease. The lands we manage under this intensive program are growing up to 40% more wood per acre than Nature's forests. Growing it faster, too - by as much as ten years. Unselfish? Hardly. We hope to be harvesting and marketing our products when your children and theirs are looking to the forest industry for their livelihood. Let's say it's just good business. An agreement between MB&PR and your grandchildren.

A Dangerous Precedent

of the arguments on either side of the current dispute between refinery workers and two oil companies, it is difficult to see how any group can reap benefit from adding the public inconvenience of a 48hour general strike to the situation.

This tactic is obviously a move to use the people of the province as pawns in a dispute which at the moment is of a localized character. A province-wide stoppage, in contravention of many existing mutually approved contracts between management and labor, and hence illegal, would be a new departure for present-day British Columbia. It would introduce the idea that the interests, safety, convenience and comfort of all the people of the province may be used by labor for purposes of leverage in individual negotiations with management.

The spirit in which the public accepts or rejects this role of hostage, will be a matter of vital concern to the whole community, for if successfully executed this time, it is logical to believe that the same tactic would be used again in were to be accepted without com- itself.

REGARDLESS OF THE MERITS plaint by the public and with the wide support of labor as a whole, any local union negotiation which ran into delays through disagreement could conceivably develop into a province-wide downing of tools.

> This would arbitrarily inject a dangerous and unpredictable element into the economy and the social structure of the province. It would be in effect an attempt to pretend that a part of the community is greater than the whole and can force the majority to its will through a calculated breakdown of the community organization.

With the use of so drastic a weapon, organized labor would inevitably invite not only public opposition but legislative action to protect the public interest. There can be no doubt that a large section of unionized workers are one with British Columbians in general in hoping that a settlement can be reached through the normal and tested channels before the Wednesday midnight deadline. They will recognize that they are being asked to embark on a method of strike action which would not only harm the general interest but would also sethe future. If the proposed venture verely damage the cause of labor

For Stiffer Measures

THE UNITED NATIONS SEcurity council has moved a step forward in its efforts to bring down the rebel Rhodesian regime of Mr. Ian Smith. To its earlier vote urging nations not to recognize the illegal administration it has now added a 10-0 resolution - with France abstaining—calling on Britain to quell the secession move and take all appropriate measures to eliminate the authority of the Smith regime. But, of wider significance, the resolution calls on all states to withhold recognition of the Rhodesian administration, to break all economic ties with it and to impose an oil

This resolution is obviously a compromise between the much softer economic sanctions already imposed by Britain and some other countries, and the much harsher measures advocated by many of the African states which involve mili-

But even on this basis, the Security Council demonstrates a unanimity and a widening determination to curb and defeat the Smith rebellion. Concerted action in regard to oil, if not circumvented by shipments through South Africa or Angola, could quickly have a serious effect on the Rhodesian economy, as would embargoes on other essential goods.

At that point the situation beunder British colonial auspices. But to maintain its position.

while Mr. Smith retained the support of the great majority of the 220,000 white Rhodesians it is difficult to see how another administration could be imposed. Certainly the Negro opposition, despite its size, would not be able to carry on, and it is not yet apparent how much effective opposition to Mr. Smith exists among the Rhodesian-born whites and older settlers.

It would seem that the country would have to be brought to a state in which most of the white residents turned against Mr. Smith's regime-and that situation suggests the existence of a very serious economic crisis which could have become even more serious for the four-million-strong black popula-

One essential move must be to ensure that the people of Rhodesia are kept fully informed of the attitude and the projected actions of the nations abroad. Reports indicate that a strict censorship of news is depriving the people of a proper knowledge of how their political adventure is regarded by most of the countries of the United Nations.

When their isolated position is fully realized there might be a much greater willingness to review Mr. Smith's policies and try to put them into the perspective of Africa's inexorable move toward independence for the Negro populations. There comes less clear. Presumably a col- might, too, be less disposition to lapse of the economy would lead condone the excesses of the policeto Mr. Smith's overthrow and the state environment which the rebel establishment of a government regime has had to impose in order

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE formation, or by failing to deny it will immediately delist any company which fails to keep its shareholders informed of new developments at the earliest possible moment is as welcome as it is long overdue. As the country's largest exchange, Toronto will undoubtedly exert a strong influence on regional exchanges and bring them into conformity with this ruling.

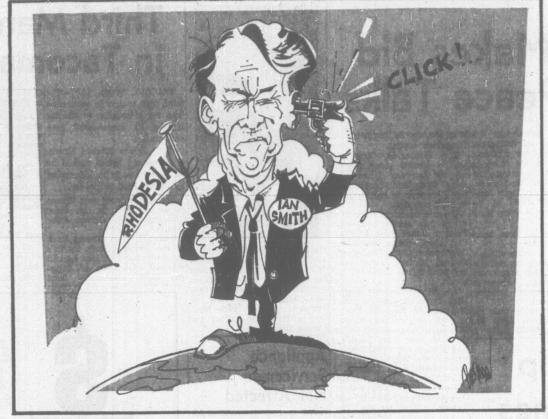

In a letter to all companies whose shares are listed on the TSE, president Mr. Howard Graham said: "The Exchange believes that when a company avails itself of the benefits of public financing it assumes a duty to its shareholders and to the public to keep them informed as to events and developments which may affect the value of their shares."

This seems so self-evident that it is hard to understand why the Toronto exchange has taken so long to act on the corollary contained in the letter: ". . . the Exchange feels that it is improper for public companies to contribute to the damage sustained by uninformed buyers or sellers by withholding relevant in- interests of the investing public.

Toronto Stock Exchange that misinformation, when it is quite apparent that some persons are acting upon such information (or misinformation) in the market."

If the Toronto Stock Exchange sticks to its ruling, and other exchanges follow suit, it should help to cut down on the widespread Canadian feeling that to invest in this country's industry and resources is to commit oneself to the vagaries of what a prominent Ontario judge, speaking of the TSE, recently described as a "private gaming club."

No country with a scarcity of domestic investment capital such as Canada can afford to have large amounts of money siphoned offor frightened off-by profiteering "insiders" or fraudulent promoters as has been the case so many times in the past. The entire investment industry, including the stock exchanges, has sorely tried public patience with its inability to run an efficient, self-policing operation. This could be its last chance before government steps in to protect the

Dewey This was unfortunate. While this year's throne speech was not in itself a very exciting document, the fact that it was read at all could be considered an extraordinary event. Every rule in the political handbook says that a rime minister in the position of Harold Wilson-holding a dangerously slim parliamentary majority and at the same time commanding a convincing lead in the public opinion polls—should have called election instead of digging in for

Canadian Example

With the cautionary tale of the Canadian general election before him, Wilson should now be more successful in persuading his election-minded colleagues that polls aren't always the most reliable guide to the public's feelings, and that the very act of calling an election is capable of working profound and unpredictable changes in opinion. Yet the pressure persists largely from those who resent having to doctor the government's program with an eye to maintaining Liberal

At any rate, the rule that should have rsuaded Mr. Wilson to go to the country this fall has been a relatively minor casualty. For the prime minister has broken just about every other rule in the vote-getter's manual and done so with apparent impunity. His government has brought down one piece of unpopular legislation after another, with scarcely a break in the dismal procession, and yet Mr. Wilson's stock has

Unpopular Legislation

Indeed, one wonders what more the vernment could have done even if it had deliberately set out to make itself unpopular in the country. It has com-mitted the cardinal sin of allowing itself to become known as a high-tax ad-ministration. It has made admirable progress in areas that have always been rather remote from voter interest (sterling strength, balance of payment) at cost of heavy sacrifices in areas that immediately touch the voter (consumer prices, services).

Worse, the government has gone back on several election promises. It has resorted with a vengeance to economic restrictionism after driving the Conservatives from office on the issue of stop-go policies. House building has allowed to lag, thus aggravating Britain's most pressing domestic probgovernment has shelved key social reforms and postponed badly needed investment programs for roads and schools. It has reneged on still promises regarding mortgage rates and the nationalization of building lands.

In all fairness, moreover, there is precious little to set against this unhappy record. The promised abolition of prescription charges has backfired in unexpected demands on services and soaring costs. Pension increases have been eaten into by rising living costs. The government's key piece of work, the prices and income policies, has so far had no effect on the widening gap between productivity and costs. Some promising measures, such as the Rent Act and the land commission, have yet to prove themselves against a barrage criticism. Other measures, such as tighter immigration controls, are the centre of bitter controversy.

More Promises

The government has made many new promises, of course. The national plan promised undreamed of prosperity by The Queen's speech promised a new deal for family doctors, more teachers, pension increases, wage-related insurance benefits, investment incentives, a new property tax deal, lower mortgage rates, more houses, local council house building subsidies, and so on and on. For every broken promise, there is a fresh new promise. For today's mud in the eye, there is tomorrow's pie in the sky.

Clobbering Mr. Average has not been the end of it, of course. Mr. Wilson and his administration have time and again severely shaken the loyalties of sections of the party by supporting the United States in Viet Nam, failing to scrap the nuclear deterrent, pigeon-holing steel nationalization and by otherwise making themselves appear to be only lukewarm socialists. Despite the dutiful protests of left-wing MPs the omission of any mention of steel in the Queen's speech can not have surprised anyone.

And yet-wonder of wonders-there is little doubt in the minds of most uncommitted observers that if an election were held tomorrow the government would soundly thrash the Conservatives. conviction has not been dampened by the two per cent swing to the Conservatives in last week's byelection victory for Labor, or even by the knowledge that the same swing would defeat the candidate charged with holding a marginal Labor seat in the next scheduled byelection. These days, by elections are taken to mean what you want them to mean.

If the pundits are right, it means we are in the presence of a political phenomenon. Widespread sympathy for the Labor government could perhaps be partly explained on the ground that the public has more or less accepted Labor's side of the running argument about who is responsible for the country's financial difficulties for belt-tightening. If so, what seems to be the inherent mechanism of the British may even paying dividends to a government claiming to be burdened with job of clearing the last government's mess

Wilson Stature

But whatever the explanation, it would not be complete without fully taking into account the person of Mr. Wilson himself. For the dominant fact of current British politics is that the former opposition leader with a reputation for cool opportunism has emerged as a prime minister with an almost charis-matic stature. At bottom, it seems, the people have come to believe that flat nasal voice with all its talk about political honesty, guts and the need to soldier on against adversity. Here, if anywhere, is the key to the puzzle posed by an electorate that appears ready to lick the hand that beats it over the head.

How Inevitable Is Red China's Entry?

General Assembly voted for the 15th time in 16 years not to admit Com-

By the two-thirds majority rule applying in this case, backers of Comm China's admission would have required 76 votes out of the 114 nations participating in the vote. So U.S. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg could safely issue a statement claiming it was "a substantial vote of the membership" and "not the

But despite the predictions of eventual Peking victory, there are reasons for challenging the inevitability theory. It is also conceivable that Peking may have reached a high water mark in this year's vote. Two factors will help determine whether this is so. One is Peking's own behavior, the other is the position of Nationalist China.

Speeches during the acrimonious seven-day debate showed that many members who basically agreed with the pro-Peking group that the Communist gime, by virtue of its sovereignty over the mainland, was entitled to membership and China's permanent Security Council seat, gagged at the accompanying demand for total expulsion of "the representatives of Chiang Kai-shek." Nationalist China is widely regarded as a co-operative and inoffensive member, entitled to remain in the UN by virtue of sovereignty over Taiwan.

'Two China' Policy

The "two-China" policy is widely favored as a fair arrangement: Memberport" according to ship in the UN and its organs and possession of the council seat would be ma home government available to the People's Republic of China; membership of the UN and its organs would be made available to the means of creating a Chiang regime under whatever name it large city-commerwished to call itself.

(In effect, this would mean a "no China" policy, at least temporarily. Neither China is willing to accept the presence of the other or recognize its sovereignty over the area each in fact cisco on the Pacific. controls. But it is pointed out here that ent, not compel its acceptance)

Then there is the question of China's own behavior. This China's role as an international predator, so often proclaimed by the U.S. Supporters of Red China's admission hope rather wistfully that world opinion can better be brought to bear on Peking if it is represented here.

The new problem is Peking's derisory attitude toward the UN and all its goals. Peking's gloating praise of Indonesia's withdrawal from the UN was widely quoted here, as were inflammatory excerpts from recent official Chinese pronouncements.

There is a definite fear here that Communist China, in its present mood, could become a real troublemaker at the UN—a noisily disruptive force determined to make the UN an anti-Western, revolutionary forum.

Several emerging nations have been given reason to believe that China only regards as revolutionary those countries which follow its own line. These fears are said by those who should know to come privately from some delegates who, on this occasion, voted for Red China's admission to world councils

IT certainly cannot be said that Ottawa moved with haste in adding fluorine to its domestic water supply. Every major dental and medical organization en the continent has endorsed fluoridation as an effective and safe means of reducing tooth decay. And it months ago that Ottawa voters gave overwhelming support to the principle of fluoridation. Now this city joins more than 170

It is noteworthy that the cost of the fluorides put into Ottawa's water supply amounts to less than five cents a person year. The flow of the chemical is carefully controlled in order that the concentration will be maintained at one part fluoride to 1,000,000 parts water.

It is doubtful if any health measure has been the subject of such extensive analysis and study as has fluoridation. The public is the beneficiary of this research.

Family Allowances

By STAN McDOWELL Times Quebec Correspondent

QUEBEC - A growing weight of opinion favors having the provincial government take over family allowances.

Argument in favor of the nange took on new impetus last month when Premier Jean Lesage re-shuffled his cabinet, transferring two of his most dyna-Rene Levesque and Eric Kierans, to McDowell portfolios related to social welfare.

Mr. Levesque, now minister of family affairs and social welfare, and Mr. Kierans, now minister of health-which inadministration of the provincial pension plan - replaced two of the morst traditionally-minded, conservative members of the Lesage cab-

The change was seen as the beginning of a second, social, phase of the transformation by the Lesage government of the provincial administration. The first phase focussed on economic matters.

And it was expected to lead to an increased emphasis on provincial autonomy in the social welfare field. Both Mr. Levesque and Mr. Kierans strongly favor the recovery of provincial initiative in areas which had been abandoned by the province to the federal government.

Social workers, welfare organizations and economists have been saying for some time that, welfare in Quebec ounted to a hodge-podge of ill-assorted measures that a new co-ordinated program was essential.

Made in Quebec

Many of them have also argued that if the particular needs of the population were to be met, the program would have to be made in Quebec rather than Ottawa. This vie has been strongly supported by such patriotic organizations at the St. Jean Baptiste Societies as well.

Family allowances loom larger in Quebec family budgets than they do, on the average, elsewhere in Canada. There are several reasons for this:

Per capita income in Quebec is lower, and families are larger, than in Canada as a Average per capita income in Quebec in 1963 was $1,504; in Canada as a whole, $1,734. The average monthly family allowance payment, per family, in 1962 was $17.96, compared with $16.58, for Canada as a whole, (Newfound-land was the highest, and both New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island were also higher than Quebec.)

Professor Jacques Henripin a demographer at the University of Montreal, is one of the strongest spokesmen for a new

Prof. Henripin argues that defining poverty account t be taken of the number of children in a family and not only of the family's in-

He suggests that to escape real poverty a family must have $1,000 a year for each adult and $500 for each child. Using these figures as the basis for his calculations he finds that 25 per cent of the non-agricultural families in Quebec live in real poverty.

Among these poor families e includes for example the 27,000 families whose income above $3,000 but below $3,500 and have more than three children; but not those couples who have, say, $2,500 a year and no child se who have one child and an income of just over $2,500

Prof. Henripin then argues that family allowances should not go to all. If a couple has only one child they should get no family allowance. If they have two children they sho get only a nominal family allowance. But for every child after the second, the payment should cover the largest part of the cost of all the neces-

The annual payment he suggests, for each child after the second, is $340.

Prof. Henripin made the proposal at a convention of the Quebec Federation of Family Social Services and it drew widespread attention and

Change of Government Freshens Norway Scene

By ROLAND HUNTFORD

OSLO-The new Norwegian government has now been in office two months: it is still eeling its way in the unfamiliar labrynth of power. Its members had been in opposition for 30 years. The previous government was socialist and they themselves are not.

The cynics have said that this is all that holds them together. They comprise four parties of the right and centre: Conservatives, Liberals, Centre and Christian People's parties. They contain all shades of non-socialist political opinion; they face a single socialist grouping, the Norwegian Labor Party.

It was said at the time of the elections that the new government had no policy, but offered only a change of ministers. To a certain extent this may be true, for in order to go to the polls as an entity the various party leaders had to evolve the most watereddown compromises to placate he extremists.

Since coming to power the ent has proceeded slowly. Almost a month passed before they decided on the cabinet's composition.

The prime minister, Dr. Per Borten, is of the Centre, both in party and inclination. This cured him the post, although there was a stronger man in Mr. John Lyng, of the Con-servative Party. But Mr. Lyng was too far to the right for the patchwork of coalition opinion, and he became for ign minister instead. So far, the principal action of the government has been to relieve taxation, which had become burdensome under the Labor government. It has abolished the much resented purchase tax on certain goods, particularly on books and periodicals. It has promised an overhaul of the whole tax system and reduction of inome tax - one of the highest in the world.

The chief strain within the alition has been religious. concerns the Christian ople's Party, which has 16 of the government's seats in the Storting (Parliament).

The CPP has determined, non-conformist views. It is puritanical, largely fundamen alist and keen on temperance. Its co-operation is vital for the existence of the government.

Much of the delay in producing the list of ministers was caused by its demand for the portfolio of education and ecclesiastical affairs. The other parties did not relish the idea of giving this post to men of education. But in the end the CPP got its way and its Mr. Kjell Bondevik eader. became the minister. So far he has been surprisingly moder

There is no doubt that the change of government has produced a feeling of freshness in Norway. Labor had ruled too long. The country had reached a state of ennui, and the very act of change (London Observer Service)

Put your best face forward - with good bathroom lighting

YOUR BEST BET'S BURNETT'S

A razor nick. A little bit of lipstick in the wrong place. These are the things you can avoid with good bathroom lighting. Good bathroom lighting? It may be as easy as installing a single fixture. Start at the mirror. The light should be on your face, not the mirror. And there should be plenty of it. A single fluorescent strip, correctly placed, will solve this problem. A luminous soffit will do the same job and make your bathroom a little prettier in the bargain. Expense? Up to you. But it won't cost much, and the pay-off comes in solid confidence. In your bathroom's appearance . . . and in your appearance, too. Face up to good bathroom lighting. Here's how:

Ticats Topple Ottawa

HAMILTON (CP) — Joe Zuger, Hamilton Tiger-Cats' first-string quarterback, picked up a charleyhorse late in the fourth quarter of Saturday's Eastern Football Conference final against Ottawa Rough Riders. But he is sure he will be ready for next Saturday's East-West Grey Cup final in Toronto.

Hamilton gained its eighth Grey Cup berth in nine years by defeating Ottawa 17-7, giv-ing the Tiger-Cats the twogame total point eastern final 35-20.

More than 21,530 fans saw Ticats score on a 90-yard touchdown play six minutes into the first quarter Saturday against Ottawa, then steadily battered Riders into the soggy Civic Stadium turf.

None of Ottawa's vaunted runers carried with any suc cess. Fullback Jim Dillard had the best performance - 25 yards on seven carries

ZUGER LEAD THEM

Zuger, maligned throughout the regular season because of his supposed inability to guide Hamilton's offence, was the whole show Saturday.

He led the clubs in both passing and runing. He completed five of nine passes for 175 yards and carried 10 times for 65. He also handled the Ti-cats' punting until shaken up late in the final quarter.
While at the helm he clicked rith halfback Dick Cohee on the 90-yard touchdown play and set up five field-goal attempts by Don Sutherin with his runng and passing.

Sutherin kicked two field goals and got singles on two others. Ottawa conceded a third-quarter safety to account for other Hamilton points.

STEWART SCORES

Ron Stewart weaved his way 59 yards for an Ottawa touchdown after taking a screen pass from Russ Jackson. Moe Racine's convert completed Ottawa's scoring.

Coach Ralph Sazio of the Ticats said: "This should prove we are worthy eastern representatives. My goodness, we beat this club (Ottawa) four out of five times this year.' Someone showed Sazio a copy Vancouver Island municipalities for the first time early next year will form a united front when negotlating contracts with labor organizations.

The move comes at a time when concern is being expressed by senior City of Victoria officials about the potential cost of wage contracts next year.

An organizational meeting will be held in Parksville Friday. Senior officials and eleced representatives from local councils in all parts of Van-couver Island will attend.

Victoria city manager Denvictoria city manager Deli-nis Young, personnel officer S. T. FitzPatrick and person-nel committee chairman Ald. Michael Griffin are expected to take part.

The city expects four major bargaining units representing civic employees to re-open their contracts by the end of

SUBSTANTIAL

Indications have been that substantial wage hikes will be sought at all levels.

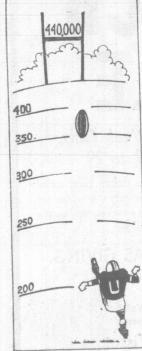

The major unions are inside staff, outside staff—both affiliated with the Canadian Union of Public Employees, which is the second largest labor organization in Canada policemen's union and fire-fighters' brotherhood.

In addition, the city bargains with electricians and carpenters for a small number of staff members, and with the Registered Nurses' Association on behalf of public health nurses. Wages in the latter case are not an issue because by agreement they are linked automatically with the scale paid to provincial health branch nurses. Mr. Young said Vancouver Island is being considered as an

Here Are the Facts On Everlasting Wax

By Penny Saver

Eureka! I have been enlightened. Until now, I have been using the same wax on my linoleum floors as I have on hardwood. Both floors looked shiny, but they're drab compared to what they can be if you use the wax that I found.

It was quite by a calder that I startly held the compared to the compared to what they can be if you use the wax that I found.

It was quite by accident that I stumbled across these revolutionary waxes, as I wandered into the shop and just saw them there—a whole display of them. There are special waxes, I discovered, for hardwood floors, linoleum, vinyl, asphalt and rubber brass band if you can." If the one thought we were "brag-mother goes through with this ging" too much for a boy who tile, cork, wood surfaces, flagstone, and any other type of floor mother goes through with this ging" too much for a boy who possible.

The distinguishing feature of these waxes is that they contain over 50 per cent imported Brazilian Carnauba. This is the hardest natural wax known to man, and comes from the leaf of the Brazilian Carnauba palm. It is unusually hard because it must protect the palm leaf from tremendous heat and humidity. Skilled natives flake the wax from the leaves after the leaves have been dried in the sun.

The more Carnauba that is used in a wax, the harder the wax will be, because Carnauba withstands temperatures up to 187 degrees.

Kind of welcome for her son, he will resent it till his dying day. War is sheer hell, Abby. Especially a jungle war. And any man who has won three medals for bravery, such as this boy has, is bound to be emotionally "shook." Yours is the typical feminine approach. Ask your husband, or son. A ho me coming such as this mother has planned would embarrass any veteran who has overseas, as this young man overseas.

To rejuvenate old and discolored linoleum floors, which tend to acquire that yellow look after repeated waxing, first use a diluted wax stripper to remove all the old wax. Let the stripper go to work undisturbed for three to five minutes, then remove. Rinse the floor thoroughly, then allow it to dry. Apply a thin coat of elear paste wax, selling for $2.40 the can, or liquid wax, selling for $2.20 the large can. Both these waxes are non-slip products, so that you won't slip and break your neck on the glistening floor. Buff with an electric floor polisher, and your floors are like new.

The company that distributes these waxes has also put out the farmed would embarrass any veteran who has seen action. A small, quiet homecoming with the farmily and a few close friends is all any veteran wants. Save the fireworks for Dominion Day.

The company that distributes these waxes has also put out a pamphlet of professional floor care. Today, the pamphlet claims, there are more than 20 different types of flooring available—everything from rattan mats to steel and cement. The booklet contains valuable information on how to take care of the most popular floor types. BASTION REHABILITATION

Square Protest Without Thought

No matter how perfect a plan may be, there is always someone to pull it to pieces. It may have been well the first place. Those concerned with it may believe it is right. A great many benefit by it. Yet, there is always one

Forbes or two who must-and do

Right now that's the way it looks with over-all plans for the rehabilitation of Victoria's historic, Bastion Square. These plans, completed and approved some months ago, call for a pedestrian mall entrance to the square, closing off Bastion Street, between Government and Langley, to traffic.

* * * The idea was publicized in newspapers. Town planners talked about it. Color slides were shown.

Everywhere the plan was lauded as one that would give Victoria an added reputation as a city that could preserve its history and at the same time, create a setting townsfolk could take pride in and visitors would enjoy.

Now, as tenders are being opened for the first phase of the work, representatives of a bank and a furniture company, both bordering on the square, have become vocal. At this last minute, they insist they don't want the square closed to traffic. They want the few unsightly parking meters that cut through the centre to remain.

* * * Last week, when Mayor R. B. Wilson gave a talk on "The Changing Face of Victoria", at an historical society meeting in the provincial library, I saw the color slides showing proposed rehabilitation of

It was an exciting picture! Details included landscaping with trees, shrubs and flowers; use of paving blocks to create depth and width; the rejuvenation of buildings that front on the square and the blending of the whole into a colorful composite with the old law courts building—now the Maritime Museum—as a focal point.

In these slides, the square was closed to traffic. Shade middle of the pavement, grass, flowers and benches were sketched to give added charm.

Why anyone would consider such beautification as detrimental is beyond ordinary understanding.

If there was no way of parking cars within a radius of several blocks, there might be weight to the reques made by the bank and the furniture store. As it stands, however, it looks like a Johnny-come-lately idea, produced without much thought.

There is a municipal carpark close at hand. There is street parking at either end of the square. Both bank and the square both sank and the square well-estable and square well-estable and square well-estable. furniture store are well-establage collections, particularly lished and well-known. Those who wish to do business with either will do so, regardless of whether they walk or ride.

It is my hore that division and standardization of residential road widths.

It is my hope that city councit will adhere to the original Vietnamese plan that calls for closing the street to traffic, and that an alternate plan for entering the square, considered because of the recent protest, will be increasing shelved.

Agreed.

Canadian Club is one of the world's great whiskies. But some of your friends may prefer Ballantine's Scotch.

Or Crystal Gin. Or Maraca Rum.

Or Drambuie.

Or even a soft drink. So be a sport. Give them what they want. After all, it's the Season, isn't it?

That's the spirit.

BRIDGE LESSON By JACOBY and SON

The Complete Book of Duplicate Bridge by Norman Kay, Sidney Silodor and Fred Karpin has made its appearance. The book is excellent indeed and, among other things, discusses the major differences be-

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

Hallmark's Hall of Fame again reached the plateau annual awards should be theirs for providing the viewer of memorable television drama last week with the presentation of "Inherit the Wind."

The real reason for attaining this pinnacle were the strong portrayals by veteran actors, Melvyn Douglas

The play dealing with the historic 1925 Scopes "monkey" trial in Dayton, Tenn., over whether a school teacher had the right to teach Darwin's Theory of Evolution, has been seen in many forms, but none as effectively as that offered by the Hall of Fame

Stephen

Douglas portrayed the real-life role taken by Clarence Darrow, while Begley played to the hilt the role of William Jennings Bryan. Brilliant is the only word to describe their work.

But, of course, there was really no other avenue since they were only re-creating the parts they had handled, opposite each other, in the theatre.

Despite the knowledge of this fact, there is no denying that television drama at its best was that offered in the 90-minute production, and a goodly share of the with a wholly satisfying experience

The tons of mimeographed malarkey which crosses the desk from network publicity offices is usually read with tongue-in-cheek, shallowly digested and filed in the nearest wastepaper basket. But occasionally some of the info' sticks and corroborates the inner views.

Of recent years, wondering thoughts have crossed the mind about the reasons for the success and longevity of CBS-TV's Gunsmoke program. The answer would have to be, simply, James Arness.

It has been a personal triumph for Arness that he has become the prototype of the western marshal.

A main quality of the six-foot six-inch actor is that he has managed to keep his personal life private. Those who know him say that on the set he combines just the right mixture of professional seriousness and a good sense of humor. At the end of the working day, he disappears into the Los Angeles traffic to lead his own life.

What more could any fan ask of a man who towers above all other heroes who populate Videoland?

THE VOICE OF BROADWAY By LOUIS SOBOL

NEW YORK-It's been no secret that there's been a bit of a feud between the Richard Burtons and novelist John O'Hara over his scornful appraisal of Liz Taylor as the star of the film based on his novel, "Butterfield 8." Now Burton has erupted—by pouring equal scorn on the novel itself. (It will be recalled Liz won the Oscar for her performance in the picture) . . . Edmund Murray, who was Sir Winston Churchill's bodyguard for years, sold his memoirs of his experiences with Churchill to a British newspaper chain for $75,000—and with the money, has purchased a small hotel . . . Harry Karl and Debbie Reynolds are building a wing to their big home on the coast—especially for the late Marie McDonald's and Karl's three children, Dee, 16, Harrison, 15, Tina, 8. They had been living with Marie.

William Hickey of the London Daily Express has some tips for the hosts and hostesses to Princess Margaret and the Earl of Snowdon. He points out that Meg likes a gin and tonic as an eye-opener at lunchtime—with wine during the meal. After dinner, she prefers whisky and water. He says both are sparkling talkers and have no tolerance for small chit-chat. They are good listeners when they are interested. At parties, they dislike being left with the same people too long so Hickey warns, hostesses to circulate them . . . I hear Greta Garbo is now devoting herself to the easel—working away on canvases.

Film star George Sanders probably wonders whatever impelled him to go into business—the Cadgo Piggery in Edinburgh, Scotland. It folded—and now other investors are suing him . . . Mia Farrow, taking in a matinee of the Henry Fonda starrer, "Generation"—leads to the impression that she would like to have the role of the daughter, Doris Owen, in the film version.

Veteran actor Arnold Stang gets the big break of his career in Universal's first multi-million dollar cartoon film "P.nocchio in Outer Space," but he's wondering whether he really should be happy. Because he is not seen on screen at any time—it's just his voice you'll hear in the screen at any time—it's just his voice you'n hear in the character "Nurtle the Turtle!" . . . Henny Youngman was on the phone to announce he's leaving for the coast to tape a Bing Crosby "Hollywood Palace" show and also that he has two picture deals pending—one with Joe Pasternak, the other with Jack Harris—and get this—in which Youngman would have the role of the late head of Which Youngman would have the role of the late head of Metro-Louis B. Mayer!! Youngman—Mayer?? It's like having this reporter playing the lead in a Clark Gable biographical movie... Andy will answer questions automitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Sook Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globa.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Robert Brooks, age 13, of San Francisco, Calif., for his question:

OUT OF THE BLUE FROM HONG KONG

. . And Every Day's a Gai Day!

CHEMAINUS-Gai Rivett-Carnac probably won't believe it herself when she grows up. Seven years ago she was a day-old orphan abandoned on a Hong Kong doorstep.

Today she's the younger daughter in a happy family here. She has a big brother and sister to spoil her and parents who think "she's just a doll."

But it took four years to make this fairytale come true. In 1960 Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Rivett-Carnac made a flying

B.C. Tel communication systems help guard our continent against surprise attacks

To detect the approach of and defend against missiles, rockets or planes entering the territorial atmosphere of North America is the role of NORAD-North American Air Defence Command—with its Combat Operations Centre at Colorado Springs.

Jointly controlled by the United States and Canada for defence against surprise nuclear attack, this complex nerve centre demonstrates vividly how B.C. Tel and a continent-wide network of telecommunications systems is meeting the challenge of today's "Cold War" conditions.

B.C. Tel's variety of the very latest developments in the communications systems are playing a key role in perhaps the most important of all public servicesdefence of North America against destruction. These electronic marvels provide the connecting links for data transmission devices between radar sites and strategically located computer centres.

Such dramatic advances for military purposes are even now expanding our everyday communications. Long distance calling, radio-telephone coverage, TWX and other special data services are but a few.
